Introduction

Gratitude is a powerful gift from God that blesses both the giver and the receiver. When we thank someone, we are giving a spiritual gift to that person, and, in turn, we receive a spiritual gift back. If we receive such wonderful spiritual blessings for thanking another human being, how much greater must our blessings be for thanking God himself? And doesn't God, the creator of the entire universe and giver of all our needs, deserve our gratitude?

The purpose of this product is to teach children how to be grateful for all that they have. "All that they have" can include things that they may or may not like such as Math, History, and other school subjects. However, I have learned over the years that showing gratitude for everything including topics we dislike, people who upset us, and items we may not want can change our attitude towards those things from negative to positive. It is my hope and prayer that this product will have that effect on the children you work with.

How to Use This Product

Print the pages on paper or card stock. Cut apart the cards. Mix them up and place them in a container.

Every day, pull one card out of the container and together, with your children, thank God for the item(s) mentioned.

If you would like to continue this activity after the cards are used up, you can make your own gratitude cards using the blank set at the end of this book.
